	Question: Most effective learning aspects of course
	The professor was very resourceful, understanding and helpful. Slide show notes were very detailed.
	The homework, and the extra credit opportunities
	The professor is amazing
	The test and reviews were helpful it was just a lot of memorization instead of retention of material.
	The professor had an intuitive grasp of making more active and successful student-teacher engagement. A typical day went like this: lecture, easy questions from chapter, further lecture, and more advanced work from the chapter. What worked so well was how the teacher paced the class to slow down to explain the topic and guide us through practice problem. It made for a breezy style of learning while focusing on student engagement by never hesitating to elaborate.
	I loved how he set up the exam percentages because I underperformed on two exams and it didn't tank my average. The homework and review materials were also very helpful when it came to material comprehension.
	The classes were very informative
	His teachings in class
	The learning catalytics with the extra problems.
	The lectures were pretty good as well as the exam prep.

	the reviews
	Kept us engaged, had homework, in class work.
	The interactive learning portions on Pearson were greatly helpful in keeping my attention, and Professor Bagherzadeh's explanation of why each answer was right helped me learn more in-depth.
	Mr. Bagherzadeh was a great teacher, and helped with this course a lot!
	The homework was super helpful with the tests
	I liked how the course was structured there was never confusion over what we were doing
	The learning catalytics and the exam reviews definitely help me the most.
	Pearson learning catalyst activities during class.
	I really liked the online homework. It was easy.
	The way he teaches and adds the extra credit and the homework allow for more grading room.
	I think the most effective thing was that we were giving questions very similar to the exam, which made studying more efficient and effective.
	Question: Least effective learning aspects of course
	Nothing, just that the subject doesn't interest me the most so it's hard to pay attention.
	The syllabus is not laid out very well, (specific dates) for class and assignments. Overall good class
	N/A
	Having multiple courses with all different curriculum but the same final is not really effective. This is out of the professor's control, but I do not think that is fair to students or professors.
	As with most classes which promote passive learning formats, there were occasions where it was not uncommon that the teacher sped through certain sections. While it was rare and he did actively engage with his students, it could be difficult to master material as you were quickly on to the next topic. All passive lectures have this problem, so this should not be seen as a problem inherent to this class.
	Honestly, i was not the biggest fan of the Pearson learning catalytics, but I know it is easy for him to get us all engaged and better understand the material.
	The slides could get confusing at times but he did a good job explaining them.
	homework's
	Him reading off the slides were boring.
	One of the exams where there wasn't really a definite exam prep.
	long homework
	I think there should be specific exam reviews with concepts of what are going to be on the exam instead of practice tests.
	There was nothing that suck out to me that hindered my learning.
	I feel like there is nothing to complain about in this course.
	I was unclear about the grading policy.
	Some of the lectures could've been more interactive

	N/A
	The instructor would go over concepts too fast and wouldn't really help us understand what he was teaching.
	probably the Pearson catalytics, it was dumb.
	writing on the board is sometimes hard to see
	The Pearson study guides for the exams weren't as helpful.
	Question: Additional comments about instructor
Bagherzadeh	He was an amazing professor, hes very understanding and cares about his students knowing the material. He gives a good amount of extra credit. The only thing I would say is, he writes on the white board a lot and the way the classroom is set up It makes it very hard ti learn because from 70% of the seats you cant see the board
Bagherzadeh	Professor Bagherzadeh is an amazing professor.
Bagherzadeh	Please have a break that is both enriching and relaxing to both your physical and mental health.
Bagherzadeh	Very good instructor as well. Mr. Jalal was always ready to help, patient with us, and kept the concepts simple. His accent was sometimes a little difficult to understand, but he knows what he is talking about, and he helped me tremendously when it came to going to his office hours.
Bagherzadeh	I liked the style of tests you incorporated.
Bagherzadeh	none
Bagherzadeh	He was very nice and always wants to make sure people understand.
Bagherzadeh	Very good professor, I enjoyed this class.
Bagherzadeh	did great
Bagherzadeh	Great instructor, taught me important topics. Always has office hours if you need extra help. I did struggle in this class but he teaches in a way that is engaging to help you understand the concepts better.
Bagherzadeh	Mr. Bagherzadeh was a great teacher!
Bagherzadeh	Very kind and always in a good mood. Really enjoyed his class
Bagherzadeh	Instructor Bagherzadeh was very willing to help students if they didn't understand however, during class he would write ineligible and very fast. he would also speak very quietly and at some points mumble, it was very hard to understand him most of the time.
Bagherzadeh	I liked him a lot.
Bagherzadeh	I with the exam reviews were worth a few points, with how long they are.
Bagherzadeh	He is super kind and helpful. He drops little jokes every now and then which makes class more fun. Gives lots of bonus points opportunities which is a huge plus!
